EMN-OECD WEBINAR

21 May 2024, 14.00-16.00 (CEST)

1. RATIONALE AND AIMS

Russia's full-scale invasion of Ukraine as of 24 February 2022 led to the largest and fastest displacement crisis in Europe since the Second World War. The Temporary Protection Directive (2001/55/EC; TPD), activated by the Council Implementing Decision (EU) 2022/382 on 4 March 2022, in response to the massive inflow of people fleeing Russia's invasion of Ukraine, grants beneficiaries of temporary protection (BoTP) standardised rights, including an access to both employed and self-employed activities.

As the Ukrainian displacement crisis enters its third year, the new joint EMN-OECD inform delves into the extent of labour market integration for BoTP in host countries and examines the policies, structures, and support measures aimed at fostering the socio-economic inclusion of displaced persons from Ukraine.

The two-hour online launch event will showcase key findings from the inform, providing an overview of labour market outcomes across host countries and the most common approaches to integrating displaced persons from Ukraine into labour markets. Additionally, the event will contextualise these findings by drawing insights from other international organisations and highlighting specific approaches and measures adopted by different host countries.

2. TARGET AUDIENCE

The main target audiences of this inform are policy makers in OECD countries as well as EMN Member and Observer Countries and the European Commission. Other audiences on EU and national level include international organisations, researchers, and civil society organisations (CSOs) working on labour market integration policies as well as the private sector, and employers' and industry organisations as well as trade unions.
