Seven Men Arrested in Antwerp in Potential Cocaine Heist

By: Narcosis | Date: October 18, 2023 | Modified: October 19, 2023 | 1

Last night Belgian police arrested 7 Dutch men and seized three handguns after crashing into a car to stop it in Antwerp. The men, aged 22 to 35 attempted to escape after the attack but were all arrested. Photos and videos taken by local residents were released showing the incident and the aftermath.

The intention of the men is currently unclear. However, there are allegations that they are linked to Belgium's growing drug trade and could have connections to a drug bust that occurred on Tuesday where several tons of cocaine were seized at the port of Antwerp. The cocaine was headed to Belgium from Sierra Leone and was hidden in soy meal. According to local outlets the men could have been attempting to take back the seized cocaine. The vehicle was reportedly close to a customs warehouse. There is currently an ongoing investigation into the intentions of the individuals involved.
