We work against racism, anti-Semitism, and other forms of discrimination against people (group-focused enmity). We are especially concerned about strengthening civil stakeholders and young people, and supporting victims of hate crimes. Within our work, we combine different fields of activity to counter right-wing extremism and to strengthen civic society:

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • analyse and monitor of activities, development, and ideology of right-wing extremism and populism in Germany and Saxony-Anhalt • offer support and counselling for victims of hate crimes • offer counselling and advice for communities and their representatives to combat right-wing extremism and to strengthen civic society • provide youth and adult education: lectures, workshops, and trainings to learn about social conditions and development of right-wing movements, to dismantle forms of marginalisation and racism and to reflect on democratic culture • offer de-radicalisation trainings for young people (especially in prison) • provide education and trainings for people (at risk) of being radicalised • advanced trainings for target groups in politics, welfare, and education Our strength in combating (right-wing) extremism derives from a wide range of activities offering different approaches for different needs. Our projects benefit from each other: knowledge about recent right-wing activities, counselling experience, networks and cooperation, and (long-term) educational offers.

Sustainability and transferability (maximum of 200 words) Short description on the sustainability and transferability of the practice, including e.g. information on the costs of the practice. Please elaborate on which elements are transferrable and how.	Countering (right-wing) extremism and strengthening democracy as a dynamic culture require long-term activities. Therefore most of our projects aim for long-term support in combating (right-wing) extremism. Our trainings for target groups in education and politics transfer experiences and provide instruments to combat extremism and strength democratic culture. Experiences made in one context can be easily transferred to other local contexts. Especially our counselling standards, as well as our standards within projects regarding "people at risk", are also a helpful orientation for other contexts. Since "Miteinander" focuses on long-term activities and a wide range of projects, we rely on the large stuff. To sustain all activities "Miteinander" depends on a continuous and sufficient funding from state and federal programmes.
